AIDS
2020

SAN FRANCISCO & OAKLAND
UNITED STATES • 6-10 JULY 2020

AIDS 2020 in the Bay Area

30 years after it was last held in the Bay Area, San Francisco and Oakland will host AIDS 2020, highlighting the tale of two cities across the Bay: Two diverging experiences that parallel those of other settings in the global North and South.

The Bay Area is a hub of top-line research coupled with a history of community engagement and effective AIDS activism. Here, AIDS 2020 will advocate for evidence-based policies in the US and elsewhere.

The conference is a powerful reminder of the extraordinary return on US investments in global AIDS programmes and will call for smart investments to continue.

Conference theme: Resilience!

- Resilience to fight against laws that codify stigma, discrimination and criminalization that restrict gender equality and access to human rights-based responses.
- Resilience to meet the challenges of a rapidly changing global health landscape and to persevere in the face of uncertainty.
- Resilience to insist on the fundamental human right to live with HIV in dignity and good health over a lifetime, to bounce back from adversity.

Funders Concerned about AIDS Webinar

12th November, 2019

Why HIV2020? Community Reclaiming the Global Response

- Civil society is contested by governments and funders that fail to embrace the centrality of communities in global health movements
- Fewer opportunities to meaningfully engage in the deliberation of new HIV research and day-to-day practical implications, including at International AIDS Conferences which fail to center community concerns and priorities
- The International AIDS Society chose the U.S. as the site for their next conference. Immigration policies and legal travel restrictions on sex workers, people who use drugs, and transgender people, will make it difficult for members of our communities to enter the U.S.
- Human rights conditions in the U.S. continue to worsen for immigrants, people of color, people who use drugs, LGBTI people, and sex workers.

HIV2020 Values and Principles

Informed by a mutually agreed upon set of values and principles. They include:

- Diversity. Ensuring diverse voices are heard and reflected, including the broadening of GIPA principles to ensure the meaningful involvement of key populations. 'Nothing about us, without us.'
- Community-led programs and solutions that amplify community voices and show community commitments to global health and human rights responses
- Innovation. Ensuring communities are equal partners (or leaders) in new research, tools, policies and strategies
- Linking global, regional and local networks through activities that strengthen global, regional and national advocacy for local impact

HIV2020 Programme Themes

HIV2020 is key population-led, inter-disciplinary and sex positive. It will focus on the following themes:

- Unfinished business in the HIV response, including unacceptably high HIV incidence and prevalence among gay and bisexual men, people who use drugs, sex workers, and transgender people
- Ending the stigma, discrimination, violence and criminalisation faced by these key populations, as well as all people living with HIV
- Improving access to high-quality and tailored HIV treatment and health services for all
- Challenging the silencing and lack of meaningful involvement of all affected communities
- Increasing funding for, and investment in, community- and key population-led responses to HIV domestically and internationally
- Working intersectionally and respecting diversity within our communities; and
- Linking HIV with broader health, social justice and human rights movements

HIV2020 Programme Structure

The event itself will bring together a three day program:

Day One (5 July 2020) will provide opportunities for affinity: full- and half-day thematic caucuses and spaces for populations or professional groups to gather, organise, and have in-house discussions

Day Two (6 July 2020) will underscore intersectionality in the HIV response and will be organized as a series of concurrent , full- and half-day scientific and thematic programs and training workshops

Day Three (7 July 2020) will highlight solidarity. Day three will bring together affinity groups for discussions about intersectional responses to HIV and broader health, social justice and human rights issues. This day will bring forward key messages from days one and two and define the next steps for community-led HIV responses.

COMMUNITY RECLAIMING THE GLOBAL RESPONSE

Significance and Impact of HIV2020

COMMUNITY RECLAIMING THE GLOBAL RESPONSE

- Building of a safe and friendly space for the equitable exchange of information, knowledge, experiences and expertise by ensuring diverse voices are heard and reflected.
- Promotion of community-led solutions and good practice in sexual health and human rights
- Amplifying community voices in calling out the inequities experienced across key populations and specific legal restrictions on some key populations' right to freedom of movement
- Reaffirming community commitments and priorities to global health and human rights responses (inclusive of HIV)
- Modelling an innovative approach for deliberating new research, tools and strategies and their real-life implications, with communities as equal partners
- Holding unique and critical discussions to the global HIV responses. Organizers are also committed to using HIV2020 as an opportunity to hold governments accountable for the provision of high-quality, evidence-informed, rights-based, affordable HIV prevention, care, and treatment and other health services

Engagement options for Funders and Allies

We are calling for advocates, community-based organisations, healthcare and services providers, researchers, public health officials, and funders to stand in solidarity with HIV2020. Collectively, we must insist on the meaningful engagement of people living with and disproportionately affected by HIV in the global response. And we must stand together against the discrimination of people from Middle Eastern, African, Caribbean and Latin American countries, people who use drugs, sex workers, and transgender people.

- Contribution to the Community Scholarship Programme
- Submit Expressions of Interest to lead funder-community discussions on funding community-led organisations and responses
- Organise video welcomes or testimonials from celebrities, government officials and other dignitaries
- Promote scientist and academic participation at HIV2020
- Support translation services
- Support professional streaming services to link up to AIDS2020
- Disseminate Statements of Solidarity
- Engage and educate other funders about the significance of HIV2020
- Support in making our case with those that may not understand our cause
